DITIGATION IN TONKIN. ALLEGED PLOT TO WRECE THE COMPANY In the Tribunal of First Instance at H phong the case of Cecoaldi versus the Societ Francaise des Charbonnages du Tonkin has beer tried. The plaintiff, the Company's late book keeper, claimed $250 salary due to him for the month of July and $500 damages for being tained at Hongay against his will through the negligence of the Company in not providing a successor to whom he could hand over the soconuts. The Company, on the other hand charged the plaintiff with having left his books in arrear and in disorder, that he had violated his promise to await the arrival of his suc cossor, that the had put about false rumours regarding the Company, writing that the tilt damaging assertions made concerning him.

Enormous quantities of albumen are required in the arts. The supply of hens' eggs being much too small to meet such a demand, part of the albumen consumed is obtained from the blood of slaughtered animals, but this product lacks some of the important properties of egg albumen. It is now proposed that the precious material be extracted from the eggs of fishes from which it can be easily dissolved out by alkali. This looks like a dangerous scheme, one by which an important source of food may be least partially out off, but it is pointed out that deposits of eggs annually left by salmon and trout along the borders of streams serve no pur nose and might be utilized in this way, and the in Russia ar immense supply could be obtained

THE CHINESE EXCLUSION ACT.

Washington, 9th September.

In direct contradiction to Mr. Geary's under standing of the situation comes a statement, ap parently from a well-informed source, that the President has called a halt in the execution the Exclusion Law: The Treasury had about perfected arrangements to carry the laws into offect; and a circular was in actual course of preparation containing instructions to Government, officials, when all of a sudden all work in the direction of executing the law was suspended. matter was the subject of Cabinet discussion, and it was after the Cabinet meeting that the Preasury officials stopped work on the preparations Assistant Scoretary Hamblio, who has charge of matters pertaining to the Chinesa laws, do clined to discuss the subject this afternoon, say ing that the matter was now in the hands Attorney-General Olney, Mr. Olney said was not at liberty to talk on the matter. A sign figurat matter in this connection is the fact that Mr. Everett, of Massachusetts, to-day introduced in the House a Bill to modify the Geary Law by extending the time for the registration of Chinese from the 5th of May, 1893, to Saptember let, 1894 and in various other ways alleviating the severity of the provisions of that measure. The Bill has been referred by the 3peaker to the Committee on Foreign Affairs, which it is understood will take immediate action upon it. It is stated Bavier Chauffour, Manager and Director and that the Court could not refuse him that this Bill was drawn up and introduced would have court him have rith the direct sanction of the Secretary State, the Scoretary of the Treasury, and the Attorney General, and that it is in fact an administration measure, designed, as it is said, to serve as a present assurance to the Empire of China that we have not entirely abandoned our friendly relations with that country,"

It is here that the most serious embarrassment comes in. The United States Government could not place itself in contempt of court. At the same time treat obligations with China called for some diplomatic consideration to be given to the protest of the Chinese Minister. Accordingly Attorney-Gen eral Olney instructed Marshal Guard to carry out the law as to deportation as far as the fault on hand for that purpose will admit, intimative that when they are exhausted the deportation wi have to cease until further action by Congress.

BOMBAY, 22nd September.

Norman's strength to-day must be assumed to be as great as it was three weeks ago, and that it is a pity for his own sake and for the public interest, that his misgivings asserted thomselves after instead of before his acceptance of Mr. Gladstone's offer. We have no explanation to The persistence of the infective principle in suggest beyond that stated in the telegram, but t is not a little curious that Sir Henry Norman's sudden change of purpose has come after arrangements had been announced for his vacating the Governorship of Queensland and after he had made some progress in the selection of his personal staff. Speculation will be busy over his enrious incident nutil Mr. (Hadstone's unaccessful attempt to break from tradition in supplying us with a Viceroy has been forgotten. One suggestion that is certain to be enterained is that the arduous task to which Sir Henry Norman tools himself to be unequal is the reconciliation of his doclared opinions upon frontier politica with accomplished facts. The more, indeed, that his able papers on this subject are studied, the more plear is it that in order to put himself in working relation with things as they are he would have bad to turn his back upon his former views. The soldier statesmin who has deliberately pronounced against keeping our hold upon Peshin and Quetta, may have anxiously wondered what he could do in an India whose borders had been pushed beyond those posts and whose sphere of influence had been deliberately extended to fir away Chitral and Chilas. However, there is no present advantage in giving rein to conjectures in this direction. It was an aufortunate selection which has had such an abortive issue and it does not increase Mr. Gladstone's claims upon our respect for his judgment in the choice of men. The incident adds one to a not inconsiderable list of schemes by that eminent states man which will not work, and whatever may be said about Sir Henry Norman's sudden change of purpose, it is less open to comment than the Second thoughts are proverbially best, and Sir Jenry Norman liss no doubt acted prudently in requisidering his acceptance of the gilded cares of the Indian Vicerovalty. Even those most cognizant of the exceptional energy and remarkable capacity for grasping affairs and despatching business which characterised that masterful Member of Council, have doubted even with those gifts supplemented by an unusual familiarity with the most abstruse problems of Indian administration, the wisdom of subjecting his sixty-eight years to a strain that has taxed the ritality of statesment in their prime. What seems strange is that he should not have at once declined the task which appears to have daunted many eminent men of little more than half his years. Perhaps he found encouragement in the fact that the giver ign who rules over the whole Empire of which India is only a part is five years his senior, and that the Prime Minister who astonishes friends and enomies by his unexecution of the Geary Law, pending some tiring energy is almost old enough to be his father. However that may be. Sir Henry Norman has resolved to leave the task of governing India for the next five years to some other states-
